Success Story

Tonia Jahshan is the founder of Sipology, a multi-million Canadian sales & marketing company selling health and wellness products.

With humor and grace, she invites women leaders to take the driver's seat on what the road to success looks like.

Women, she says, hold it all together, do it all, fix the big problems, save the world - and pick up the dry cleaning.

Tonia's approachable style and been-there-done-that stories give startup founders, growth-driven entrepreneurs, dreamers, and women looking at what's next in their lives a wake-up call to reimagine their business success journey by prioritizing mental health rather than making it an afterthought.

Accolades

It was a privilege to learn more about Tonia's personal and career journey, as well as the impact that passion, perseverance, and purpose had on her as an entrepreneur.

I know I speak for our agents and leadership team when I say that her open discussion on mental health and the struggle many entrepreneurs face left a lasting impact. Thank you for sharing your story with us Tonia!
